D. Elections will be held in a slating process, wherein each eligible chapter that submits a candidate by the application deadline is assured one seat on the IFC Executive Council, and all other positions are left open for any member candidate.
   1. If a chapter does not submit a candidate by the application deadline, that chapter may not hold a seat on IFC Executive Board until the next regular election.
E. The slating committee will interview all officer candidates.
   1. All outgoing IFC Executive Officers not running for a position in the election will sit on the slating committee.
   2. Each chapter eligible to hold a position on the Executive Board will name a slating delegate from their chapter. Slating delegates will participate in interviews and the slating session alongside eligible Executive Officers. A slating delegate may not sit on or be a candidate for IFC Executive Board.
   3. The IFC Advisor will be present at candidate interviews and slating discussions, and may participate in these discussions at his or her discretion.
F. The slate for executive officer positions will be formed at a scheduled slating session. The slating committee will discuss preferred candidates for each position. This will require the slating committee to consider each candidate in relation to how they are expected to perform based on slating discussion and interviews, and how they are expected to function in relation to other candidates under consideration.
   1. The slating committee will produce a slate which identifies its optimal choice for each executive position from amongst the candidates.
2. Candidates that are tentatively slated should be contacted during the slating session to confirm that they are willing to perform the position they have been slated for.

   2. In the event the slate does not pass, there will not be a re-slating. Positions will be filled via individual officer elections from amongst the previously submitted candidates at the next IFC meeting.

They may propose alternative candidates to run against officer seats which those chapters contest, which IFC may consider for individual officer elections with a majority vote of delegates.

J. When individual officer elections are required, candidates who previously applied may speak at the following general body meeting to be voted upon by the delegates.
   1. Individual officer elections will be run via a majority (51%) anonymous ballot. A hand vote may occur with a delegate motion and majority delegate vote.
   2. If no candidate receives a majority of votes in a given officer election, there will be a run-off vote in which the lowest vote winner will be eliminated, and the remaining candidates will be voted upon again. This will continue until one candidate obtains a majority.
